Lantern

1963

Rowland Hall

School for Girls

Salt Lake City, Utah

Dedication

Alpha and Omega symbolize the beginning and the ending of all things named. The students of Rowland Hall, from the smallest children of the nursery school to this year's class of seniors, are bound together in one great class of learning. We are the life, the spirit, and the backbone of a tradition. We are the beginning and the end of the first academic phase of learning. We are the example for future students who will one day take our places as the leaders of Rowland Hall.

And so, with pride and hope for the future, the Lantern 1963 is dedicated to you, the students of Rowland Hall.

Mrs. Elizabeth T. Corr

Mrs. Corr, the principal of Rowland Hall, looks at each student as an individual part of the school. She is a counselor and guide to those who are in need of advice or friendship. The warmth with which she greets us, the calmness with which she solves our problems, and the understanding with which she teaches us sustains us during our years at Rowland Hall. The memory of the relationship we have shared with Mrs. Corr will remain with us throughout the years.

The Right Reverend Richard S. Watson

Bishop Watson contributes to the life of Rowland Hall as a source of spiritual guidance and friendly reassurance. As president of the board of directors he is deeply involved in all the school's activities. He works closely with Rowland Hall and has a true interest in every student. Bishop Watson has won the admiration and the affection of everyone who knows him.

The Reverend Francis L. Winder

Father Winder is present every morning at our chapel service to lead us in singing and prayer. He has done a great many things for our chapel, making our services more beautiful and satisfying. The prayers that he offers upon individual request have been a source of comfort and consolation to many of us. We particularly appreciate the fact that he always finds time for personal conferences when we need them.

Class of 1963

Now that we are reaching the end of the alphabet it seems easier to look back at the known than to anticipate the unknown. We view the school and our education with a new perspective. The senior year brings a new understanding of ourselves and a new relationship with the school. The desire to give our ideas, time, and energy to the school in the form of leadership and increased participation is strong. No longer are we content to be passive members of the student body. Now, so near the end of our time at Rowland Hall, we enter into the activities with new vigor, showing our development through the years from our entrance until our reluctant exit.

Junior Class

Since becoming upper classmen, we have found great pleasure and challenge in our increased responsibilities of school government, and our more intensive preparation for college. Our attitudes and thoughts have begun to change as we realize we have such a long way to go to achieve our many varied goals.

Long known for loving to set and upset traditions, we have already left our mark upon the school. It is our hope that, in the year to come, we will deepen this mark and set an example for the classes which will follow us.

Sophomore Class

We, the sophomores, have finished our years as underclassmen in Rowland Hall. We have passed the stage of preparation and training for leadership. We are not the Alpha or the Omega, but in between.

Next year we shall begin to participate in the leadership of the student body. Well aware of our forthcoming duties and responsibilities, we, the class of 1965, are eagerly waiting to accept the challenge that is offered to us.

Freshmen Class

We, the freshmen, have completed nine years of school. What does it mean to us that we are three quarters of the way through the academic alphabet?

We have learned, we are learning, we shall learn. The reading, writing, arithmetic courses of our early years have given way to the more advanced studies of literature, history, mathematics. We have learned how to make friends, and we have discovered why we have lost friends. We have learned some difference between right and wrong. Some of us know how to make the best use of our time, but most of us are still looking for fun. We have yet to realize that to live is to learn, and that much knowledge is necessary in this day and age.

During the next three years we shall learn the rest of the alphabet, but even that will not be the end. We shall have to form words from the letters we know.

ORGANIZATIONS

The many extracurricular organizations of Rowland Hall help the students become well-rounded persons. Not only do these organizations benefit the group by giving each girl a chance to add something of her own, but they also benefit each girl who takes part by helping her gain something from the group for herself.

Gretchen Brown

Student Body President

The Student Body President holds the highest student office in the school. She represents us in public; she is responsible to Mrs. Corr for us all. It is her official actions that open and close each school day. Her office is one of honor and serious responsibility.

Sue Sonderegger
Crucifier

The Crucifier, who is appointed by the Bishop, holds the highest honor the school offers to any of its students. She becomes our symbol of integrity and personal honor, and upholds the traditions of Rowland Hall. By representing these aspirations, she adds meaning to the chapel service and to the life of the school.

Chapel

Chapel is a place of prayer for both Rowland Hall and St. Mark's students. But more than a place of prayer, it is a place of communion both with God and with our own thoughts

A place of daily service and private use, the chapel is the heart of the school, and the place of union of hope and faith.

The Executive Committee is composed of the student body officers, the senior class president, the junior class president, and the crucifier. Its purpose is to discuss problems of student government, and propose solutions to them. It operates on the belief that a small group can formulate ideas more efficiently than a larger one.

Operating under a constitutional form of government, the students are represented by officers chosen from every class in the high school. Once a month, this Student Council meets to deal with current problems of the school and to plan activities for the student body. The school government functions smoothly under the Student Council, which forms the executive branch of the student government.

The Judiciary Committee is the central point of our law enforcement. The beginning of our laws is in the Student Council, but once the laws are made, the Judiciary Committee must see that they are obeyed. The students establish the laws by exercising their right to vote. The Judiciary Committee then serves as a controlling force to aid us in obeying the rules that we ourselves have enacted.

Athletic Association

The Athletic Association adds fun to the life at Rowland Hall. All of the High School girls are members. The Association is divided into two teams, the Red and White, which compete against each other in softball, volleyball, and basketball. The Association also conducts the annual picnic in the canyon and operates the school store.

Learning about Japan this year has given the United Nations Club members a wider perspective on world affairs. A purely voluntary organization, the U.N. Club is designed to stimulate interest in peoples of other countries. Ten delegates attended the model U.N. Assembly on April 19-20. Eight delegates attended the general assembly and committee meetings while the other two attended a specialized agency meeting and the colloquium respectively.

Latin Club

The Latin Club, composed of all Latin students, is a fairly new campus organization. This year, for the first time, a play was presented in Latin to the student body. The play and other forms of Roman entertainment were presented at the annual "Roman Banquet" in the late spring. Through such activities the Latin students bring immediacy to their study of the language.

Boarding Department

Apart from the school, Rowland Hall is also home for as many as forty girls. Although most of the boarders come from Utah and neighboring states, some come to us from far away places. The girls are as varied in their personalities as the places from which they come. Each has something unique to add to the boarding family.

Every girl knows what can happen when girls get together. At Rowland Hall it certainly does! Water fights, all night food sessions, hen parties, phone booth sitting, clothes borrowing, hair cutting, and advice on romantic difficulties all are part of dormitory living.

To the boarder, Rowland Hall is still only a home away from home. Writing letters, receiving mail, making long distance phone calls (collect), and the anxious bedlam before vacations show that even the saltiest old boarder gets homesick. All in all, though, the girls do enjoy their second home.

Lantern

The Lantern is the record of the year 1962-1963. It contains pictures of every student of Rowland Hall and of every organization. But the Lantern is more than this. It holds the faces of this year! Never will all of you who are here ever be together again. You have in your hand the only record of your classmates and the activities of this year. Please look around you now. In years to come the Lantern will be your only document of remembrance.

Writing is one way in which a student may impose form on her experiences. Adventure in a story, music in a poem, each is a way of bringing into sharpness an aspect of the world as she sees it. Echoes gives each student a way of seeing what she has done and of sharing it with others.

The extracurricular activities at Rowland Hall are among the most important aspects of our school life. They give us a chance to work together harmoniously and to cultivate friendships. They are our expression of real school spirit. They also help us to develop our individuality by giving us opportunities to originate and carry through ideas of our own.

JUNIOR PROM

The Junior Prom marked the end of a year of exciting social events for the Seniors, and the beginning of a new social life for the Juniors. It was the last stop in the stairway of many important social events of the school year, and was a gala, romantic occasion enjoyed by all.

GRADUATION

Graduation is, of course, both an end and a beginning. It is the end (whether we wish it or not) of our dependence upon the school and the beginning (whether we are ready or not) of our reliance upon ourselves. Now we will find out how well we can use the materials we have been given here.
